

Promotional products engage all five senses

Imprint Your Logo Here!

They are the only form of advertising that your customers can see, touch, hear, taste and smell.

Interact with your brand

Smell is the sense that creates the most powerful impression in your brain.

So the next time your prospective customer enjoys the scent of fresh morning coffee rising out of his mug, make sure YOUR LOGO is on it.

Promotional Products are among the only forms of advertising that allow an audience to interact with your brand on a physical level.

A promotional product is a personalized gift that engages your audience in such a way that they'll actually see and remember it.

MP3 Players, Headphones and Download Cards are all great examples of promotional products that utilize sound to engage your audience in a way that's more memorable than any radio commercial. (plus, repeated engagements at no additional cost)

Edible promotional products are utilized by over 75% of the Fortune 100 because of their effectiveness in creating memorable experiences for the end-user.

Promotional products are tangible

You can hold them in your hands.
You can feel them and use them.

Hold Them
Feel Them
Use Them